"the sensation of an immense regret shaking its wings of light and shadow on the forehead of an immense pain", according to Roger-Milès, are bought at the Salon and find their way into museums in Le Havre, Rouen (Le Lever de lune acquired in 1889, La Montée de Bénouville acquired 1886), or Fécamp. He regularly sold his paintings at auction, made up of landscapes including numerous views of Étretat (Le Petit Val - Musée de Sète), and the Pays de Caux (Paysage normand - Musée de Fécamp); his art was then described as "going beyond impression,(...) by the search for the true and beautiful." After losing the use of his hand, and suffering from a long and debilitating illness, he died in 1909. His studio went up for sale the same year.The flobart is a beaching boat capable of floating in less than thirty centimeters of water and used for fishing on the Opal coast from Berck to Calais and particularly at Audresselles and Wissant.
