Description

Louis XV Transition period commode a Ressaut, dating from the XVIIIe century -It is in Rosewood veneer in Amaranth frames . Elegant chest of drawers with slightly curved front opening with three rows of drawers, including three small drawers in the waist and 2 wide drawers . The cabinet features remarkable geometric marquetry work in rosewood frieze, highlighted with amaranth fillets and finely drawn Greek-style frames. The rounded uprights are adorned with superb ormolu falls decorated with ram heads and foliage, ending in hooves also in chased and ormolu. The moving lower crosspiece receives a large central rocaille-style gilt bronze openwork motif, bringing balance and elegance to the whole. The top is topped with a molded marble in veined brown-beige shades,
