Description

Elegant and majestic, this Art Deco enfilade from 1940 embodies all the refinement of period craftsmanship, where rigorous lines met rich materials. Crafted in mahogany and rosewood, it subtly plays on contrasts: the glowing warmth of the mahogany dialogues with the deep, dark veins of the rosewood, creating a visual presence that is both sober and luxurious. The marble top, in shades of beige and brown, adds a mineral touch that perfectly complements the ensemble. The natural variations of the stone, sometimes soft, sometimes more pronounced, give the piece a timeless, sculptural dimension. This marble, patinated by time, alone tells a story of elegance. The balanced proportions, the geometric lines typical of the Art Deco movement and the meticulous details (metal handles, symmetry of
