Description

Important Louis XV period secretary, in floral marquetry and rich ormolu ornamentation, topped with an elegant marble top. This refined piece of furniture features a curved front entirely decorated with a marquetry of flowers and scrolls on a precious wood veneer background, offering a very fine decorative work in the spirit of French productions of the XVIIIe century. The flap reveals a particularly well-kept interior composed of multiple small drawers, storage compartments and compartments. The writing surface is sheathed in patinated burgundy leather. The secretary also reveals a concealed cache beneath the writing surface, a sought-after detail that testifies to the refinement and ingenuity of antique cabinetmaking. The lower part opens onto a storage space with interior shelf. Beautiful
