Description

Solid carved oak chandelier made in the 1920s. The structure is organized around a central shaft adorned with a female figure carved in the round, supporting a set of curved wooden arms. Each arm holds an opaline glass tulip, diffusing a soft light. The whole is suspended by decorative ropes, reinforcing the piece's handcrafted, decorative character. This model is part of a decorative production of the inter-war period, combining neo-classical influences and a taste for carved woodwork. France, 1920s.
