Description

Oil on canvas, portrait of a little girl in full regalia, her left hand caressing a small dog (probably a greyhound), a symbol of loyalty and tenderness, and her right hand holding a sweet or toy. This is a portrait of a noble child, probably commissioned to immortalize the tender age of an heiress or court damsel, in a period carved gilded frame. Child portraits in this period were commissioned by wealthy, noble families to celebrate a birth or christening, or to mark a dynastic union. Ecole du Nord XVIII siècle Height with frame: 80 cm; unframed: 63 Width with frame: 67 cm; unframed: 48 cm
