grandeur to the overall piece. Luxurious Malachite Base: The clock rests on a substantial and visually striking base crafted from malachite, a semi-precious stone prized for its deep emerald green color and intricate, mesmerizing veins. This malachite base provides a luxurious foundation, beautifully complementing the rich bronze sculpture and ormolu mounts. Ornate Bronzes (Ormolu): The clock features meticulously crafted bronzes, including exquisite ormolu mounts and decorative accents. The detail is finely executed, demonstrating the superior craftsmanship prevalent during this period. The dial, probably enamel, features elegant Roman numerals, adding to its classic aesthetic. Emblematic Military Motif: The ubiquitous military theme, evident in the central figure of the general and the inclusion of various martial symbols on the base, serves as a powerful visual tribute to the military triumphs of Napoleon III and the lavish grandeur of the French Second Empire. Style, Period and Exceptional Condition: The distinctive design elements, including monumental figurative sculpture, lavish use of malachite and overt military motifs, are unequivocally indicative of the Napoleon III style. This opulent period, stretching from 1852 to 1870, witnessed a significant revival of interest in classical forms and a pronounced emphasis on luxury, grandeur and imperial display. The style was deeply influenced by Napoleon III's military achievements and the extravagant opulence of his court. The clock is in excellent and perfect working condition. It has been meticulously cleaned and professionally maintained by a watchmaker specializing in museum-quality watch conservation. It has an eight-day movement and chimes every half-hour and hour on its bell. The clock comes complete with pendulum, key and bell. General Impression: This Napoleon III mantel clock is a truly captivating piece that would make a stunning and historically resonant addition to any distinguished collection.
