Description

An elegant Murano glass pendant lamp attributed to Barovier, made in Italy in the 1940s. This rare model exemplifies the excellence of the historic Murano glassworks, featuring craftsmanship of extraordinary quality and a striking sculptural presence. The structure consists of two elegant side arms in ribbed clear glass that frame a scalloped central bowl, also made of hand-blown glass. The slender, delicately decorated metal upper rod lends lightness and harmony to the whole, emphasizing the sophisticated style typical of Barovier's production from that period. The transparency and texture of the glass create evocative plays of light, making this pendant a truly decorative element as well as a functional one. Perfect for elegant, classic, or modern settings, it is a piece of great charm for collectors
