Description

Pencil drawing heightened with watercolor depicting two women in an intimate scene, probably a brothel or bordello scene, a theme dear to Jules Pascin and the world of the École de Paris. The line is free, nervous and delicate, with a few colored highlights on the faces and hair. The composition shows two female figures reclining or seated, in an attitude of colloquial conversation. The work bears the imprint of the École de Paris. The work bears the stamp "Atelier Pascin" in the lower right. Dimensions: 44 x 30 cm. Condition: old paper, slight traces, folds and marks of time visible. frame. Drawing bearing Pascin studio stamp. Provenance: private collection
