Description

Charming table lamp from the late Art Deco period, already looking towards the sleeker lines of the modernist movement. It depicts a stylized rabbit in regula with a medal patina, set on a chrome-plated metal base supporting elegant spherical glassware in white opaline. The ensemble presents a particularly balanced silhouette, typical of this pivotal period when animal decor inherited from Art Deco dialogues with more sober, functional lines. The chrome frame provides an interesting contrast with the warm patina of the regula and the luminous softness of the opaline. The lamp has been completely re-electrified to current standards. It is perfectly functional and ready to take its place again in a contemporary interior as well as in a more collector's decor. To note: a few traces of
