Description

Votiba lamp. Bronze. 17th century. A ceiling lamp of the type known as "chapel" or "church", due to its common use in such places, operating on oil and featuring a series of corrugated elements and chains with two types of openwork links (one for the washer of the oil reservoir, which is missing, and the other to connect the two upper and lower parts that make it up). To be compared with examples such as a 19th-century lamp in the El Greco Museum in Toledo (Spain), several others in the Museum of Sacred Art in Bilbao, etc. -Size: 34x34x73 cm
