Description

Large chased tin-plated copper cauldron or handled vase from Iran, Persia, 19th century. Born under the Kadjar dynasty, this object is in very good condition. The antique tin plating gives a finish close to silver. The deep chasing represents numerous polylobed medallions decorated with hares and gazelles. The deep chasing features numerous multi-lobed medallions decorated with hare and gazelle motifs. A fine, flowery Greek motif surrounds the top of the object, while a frieze surrounds the bottom. Two very thick bronze arrowhead attachments support the handle, also in bronze. Note the narrowing of the body in the upper part which gives a real cachet to this quality piece.## The Kadjar or Kadjar dynasty (Qajar, Qadjar, Qajar, Persian: ?????) was a Turkmen dynasty that ruled Iran from
