Description

Oil on canvas. Original canvas. Hand-signed. In this exquisite landscape captured by Germaine Marcel-Béronneau, the Petit Trianon emerges from the foliage like a jewel of balance and sobriety, enveloped in an ethereal atmosphere characteristic of the artist's post-impressionist sensibility. From the gardens, the palace captivates the eye not by its size, but by its neoclassical refinement; an architecture of Cartesian purity where the golden ratio and Corinthian order impose absolute harmony with the surrounding nature. The façade, in a creamy hue that seems to absorb the filtered light of Versailles, rises with discreet elegance, underlining the transition from expansive Baroque to a geometric sobriety that sought "truth" in the forms of Antiquity.
