Description

An amusing pyrogen made up of several porcelain and brass parts from the late 19th/early 20th century. The upper part of our pyrogen is conical in shape and features circular striations for match friction. Its center forms a receptacle for storing new matches. This part rests on a saucer, entirely hand-painted and decorated, and is used to store used matches. A brass ring separates these two parts. The whole is supported by a circular base in patinated brass. Dimensions: height 12.5 cm diameter of the dish 13.5 cm Shipping costs 15 euros in mainland France, other destinations on request.
