Description

Studio work from a small series of paintings done in Vichy on the banks of the river Alier. This one depicts the river Alier and the new park, indicated on the back. It is signed lower left. This work displays Castelucho's remarkable spontaneity, liveliness and rapidity of touch. The framing is simple and centered on the main motif, "the river": in a few quick, luminous strokes, a boat glides by, the water flows, the weather is fine and, moored to the bank, a hut floats on a raft, leading our gaze towards the park. Castellucho is a painter of the outdoors and of nature, and this painting is its expression. It is soberly framed.
