An elegant bust depicting Queen Margherita, an example of commemorative portraiture in the late 19th-century style. The face, slightly turned, is rendered with great delicacy and attention to detail; the queen is depicted wearing a tiara and rich jewelry, symbols of royalty and understated elegance. The bust is carved from Carrara marble, chosen for its fine grain and ability to render the softness of the facial features. It rests on a column of dark veined marble, which creates a refined chromatic contrast and enhances the overall effect. A decorative work of great charm, ideal for classical settings, studies, or modern spaces.
