Description

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE STANDING WITH HIS BICORN, ANCIENT BRONZE Elegant figurative sculpture representing Napoleon Bonaparte on his feet, in a solemn and emblematic posture, his hand slipped into the vest, wearing an officer's jacket and fitted panties. The Emperor is depicted standing on a rectangular terrace, accompanied by his bicorn placed on a pile of books, a symbolic detail evoking both the military strategist and the statesman. Beautiful bronze cast iron with antique brown patina nuanced with golden reflections. The character presents a deliberately sober and powerful model, in the spirit of historical decorative sculptures of the 19th century. The details of the uniform are finely processed: buttons, lapels, shoulder pads and decorations visible on the chest. The face, with a serious and meditative look, reinforces the imperial character of the whole. At his side, the famous bicorne rests on stacked works, a motif particularly evocative of the Napoleonic figure. The composition is based on a molded quadrangular base ensuring beautiful stability and an elegant presentation. The back also reveals a beautiful sculpture work with the red bottoms and the hands crossed behind the back holding a roll or gloves, adding depth and realism to the scene. Good general condition with traces of time and slight surface wear in accordance with the age. This sculpture is a decorative piece of character, ideal for a cabinet of curiosities, a library, a history amateur office or a collection dedicated to the First Empire. It will seduce lovers of Napoleonic objects and ancient decorative bronzes. Height 28 CM on its Base: 11 CM x 11 CM
