Description

Pair of Empire walnut chairs with openwork backs in the Jacob taste circa 1800. Elegant pair of Empire period chairs in molded and carved walnut, resting on tapered front legs. The backrests feature an openwork design forming a stylized monogram enriched with palmettes and scrolls, directly inspired by the neoclassical vocabulary developed in Jacob's entourage in the early 19th century. The slightly arched curve of the backrests softens the architectural rigor typical of the Empire style and creates a harmonious silhouette. The warm golden-brown patina of the walnut highlights the finesse of the carved work as well as the refinement of the ajours. The seats retain their antique gros point tapestry in beautiful shades of olive yellow, powder pink and pearl gray. The central
