Description

Carved and gilded wooden frieze in the shape of a volute, early 1800s mounted on a modern turned base (3 cm high). This piece was originally part of a larger decorative ensemble but lends itself perfectly to being transformed into a lamp base. Of particular note is the quality of the gilding, which plays on the continuous interplay of glossy and matte finishes achieved through both the burnishing with agate stone of the raised sections and the engraving of the background areas. In good condition, apart from minor gilding wear and chips. Italy, early 1800s. The price does not include shipping costs.
