Description

Pair of Louis XVI Style Marble & Ormolu Table Lamps (Former Cassolettes) A striking pair of table lamps crafted from veined grey and white marble with finely cast gilt bronze (ormolu) mounts, designed in the Louis XVI revival style. Originally produced as decorative cassolettes, these pieces have been professionally converted for electrical use, retaining their classical architectural form and symmetry. Each lamp features an ovoid marble body raised on a fluted ormolu pedestal, set upon a square stepped gilt bronze base. The bodies are mounted with ornate scrolling handles, cast as flowing foliage and floral garlands, adding strong neoclassical character. The upper sections are finished with pierced ormolu galleries and domed fluted covers, now supporting a three-arm brass light fitting,
