Description

An extraordinary and rare French Louis XV secrétaire, crafted in Paris in the mid-18th century, a true testament to the finest Parisian cabinetmaking of the Rocaille period. The piece is made of fine violetwood, embellished with refined floral marquetry in violetwood and rosewood, featuring inlays of various wood species skillfully combined to create an elegant interplay of color and decoration. The two-door front features a rich inlaid composition of naturalistic motifs, framed by shaped panels typical of the Louis XV style, while the sides display exquisite geometric interlacing. The piece's flowing lines are further emphasized by the arched, slender, and elegantly tapered legs, finished with gilded bronze finials. The finely chiseled and gilded bronze fittings--handles,
