Description

Rare and important soapy opaline vase decorated on one side with a gallant scene attributed to the painter Jean François Robert, attractive model with umbrella neck probably marketed by the Maison Launay, Hautin & Cie circa 1840.
Note:The contractual association between the painter Jean-François Robert and the Maison Launay, Hautin & Cie (active between 1837 and 1855) constitutes the major axis of the marketing of luxury opalines in the 19th century. Launay, Hautin & Cie, acting as the general depot and exclusive distributor of Baccarat and Saint-Louis crystalware, entrusted Robert's independent workshop in Sèvres with the painted and enamelled decoration of its richest opal crystal pieces. Thanks to the patented low-fusion enameling process developed by Robert, this
