Origin: Italy
An elegant antique fireplace crafted from polychrome marble featuring refined pink, red, and ivory veining. A veined marble breccia from Italy, a material highly prized between the 19th and early 20th centuries. The structure is simple and balanced, with square side posts and a molded upper frame. The polished surfaces highlight the irregular pattern of the veining, giving the fireplace a refined yet striking appearance. An architectural element of great elegance, ideal for both classic interiors and contemporary spaces where one wishes to incorporate an authentic antique piece with a strong decorative presence.
