Description

A pair of 19th-century white opaline bottles, attributed to Desvigne Design, made in the elegant taste of the Charles X period. Each bottle features a refined silhouette with balanced lines, sublimated by rich enamel decoration and enhanced with fine gold gilding. The delicately executed floral decoration, blending bunches of grapes and gilded foliage punctuated with cobalt-blue touches, brings finesse and poetry to the ensemble. The ringed necks and matching stoppers accentuate the elegance of these timelessly charming decorative pieces. These flasks bear witness to 19th-century glassmaking expertise and make remarkable display or decorative objects, ideal for enriching a refined interior or a collection of antique opalines.
