Description

This trompe-l'oeil plate by Didier Gardillou is a true work of art in porcelain, perfectly illustrating his talent for realism. At the bottom of the plate unfolds a strikingly realistic illusionistic composition: a bunch of fresh asparagus, its colors subtly nuanced, appears to have been simply placed in the center. The vegetables, with their slightly irregular shapes, display a brilliant sheen and a controlled translucency that evokes the tension of perfect ripeness. The rim is scattered with small, lifelike insects, reinforcing the illusion of a living still life. A scalloped gold border highlights the edge. The illusion of real asparagus on the plate is spectacular, making this piece a tribute to nature and to Didier Gardillou's exceptional craftsmanship.
