Period : 20th century

Condition : En l'etat

Description

Chinese porcelain figure depicts the Laughing Buddha, or Budai, seated in a traditional posture. It stands 25 centimeters in height and 24 centimeters in width, with a depth of 13 centimeters and a total weight of 1.7 kilograms. The figure is decorated in a polychrome famille rose enamel palette, featuring a robe adorned with hand-painted floral motifs in shades of pink, yellow, blue, and green over a white glazed ground. The Buddha is modeled with a wide facial expression, highlighted by red-enameled lips and detailed black eyebrows. He holds a traditional cloth sack in his left hand, and his voluminous robes are further accented with blue-ground borders featuring geometric and scroll patterns. The unglazed base shows a kiln-fired texture and contains an impressed oval
