Description

Very beautiful and important marble sculpture depicting a Virgin of Pity in a composition imbued with recollection and solemnity. The Virgin, with raised gaze and deeply meditative expression, supports the face of Christ surrounded by an abundant decoration of sculpted roses.The ensemble displays remarkable sculptural workmanship, both in the delicacy of the features and in the treatment of the drapery, hair and floral decoration. The quality of the modelling and the elegance of the composition recall the decorative and religious productions of the late 19th century, in the symbolist and neo-classical taste. Very decorative.Very decorative, this work has a strong visual presence and will naturally find its place in a characterful home, a collection of religious art or an enlightened amateur's
