Description

Exceptional scene by the Russian painter Léon ZEYTLINE representing the upper floor of the Parisian omnibus Madeleine-Bastille, where an elegant woman is sitting having an animated conversation with the man behind her. A very rare subject in painting, a symbol of a bygone era that gave way to other means of transport (the "Compagnie Générale des Omnibus de Paris" ceased its activity in 1920). An absolutely charming work, not to be missed ! A ZEYTLINE exhibition took place in Chatou in 2017, a new ZEYTLINE exhibition, which was a great success, took place at the Musée des Beaux-Arts in Mulhouse in 2020 A ZEYTLINE exhibition is currently taking place in St Flour (France) from May 1 to August 23, 2026 ! Large size 100 x 73 cms (sold without frame) Oil
