Description

Liseron brooch in 18k gold and silver, late 19th century. It features three fully removable bindweed flowers that can be worn separately thanks to a removable pin system. The flowers are set with rose-cut diamonds, centered with old-cut diamonds. The leaves and stems are paved with diamonds and feature a tubogaz mesh structure. The botanical and poetic aesthetic of the late 19th century. This bindweed brooch breathes eternal life into nature thanks to the brilliance of the diamonds, sublimated by a setting of fascinating mechanical suppleness. Gross weight: 49 g
