Description

Pair of Wedgwood blue jasper planters, England, early XXe century. Rare and elegant pair of Wedgwood jasper planters, made in the famous matte celestial blue emblematic of the English manufacture. Each piece is adorned with remarkably fine white cookie appliqué decoration, featuring garlands of grapevines and bunches of grapes suspended from lion mascarons, alternating with neoclassical scenes inspired by Greco-Roman antiquity. The particularly meticulous execution of the reliefs highlights all the expertise of the Wedgwood house, whose productions in jasper are today considered benchmarks of English decorative neoclassicism. The harmonious proportions and timeless elegance of these planters make them equally at home in classic and contemporary
