Description

European painter (19th-20th century) - Seascape with a sailing ship in a storm. 45 x 67 cm (unframed) - 51 x 73 cm (framed). Oil on panel, in a gilded wooden frame. Signed indistinctly in the lower right corner. The painting depicts a two-masted sailing vessel navigating a stormy sea. The waves, rendered with energetic brushwork, dominate the composition, while an overcast sky closes the scene in the background. The technique shows a confident handling of marine movement, with the foreground swells treated with fluency and effective chromatic contrasts between the deep greens of the sea and the white foam. The subject fits within the nineteenth-century European marine painting tradition, widespread in French, British, and Northern European circles. Condition report:
