Description

An object of curiosity, this delicate 19th-century jewelry box with a telescopic gallery system, which rises when the lid is opened; a refined box in the Romantic style with chased straps.

Ornamented with bronze ring elements, the gallery is finely cut and adorned with a crowned coat-of-arms in the center, all in relief and beautifully gilded, this quality piece is veneered with blond elm burl and its interior is lined with rosewood. Oo is in full Romanticism and the little Princess will keep her most precious ornaments in it. In perfect condition and lockable, this charming piece has a preciousness and a proud allure, it is French and well preserved; a pretty, decorative and inspired box in perfect condition.
