Description

A Fascinating Piece of History and Style for Your Home In the world of antiques, finding objects that combine historical utility with pure decorative beauty is a rarity. Here's a great opportunity in my selection: this splendid 19th-century ceramic bedroom ice bucket, complete with its lid featuring knob handles decorated with garlands of roses on a cream-colored base. This type of ceramic was used as early as the 1700s and was filled with ice to keep fruit or ice cream cool. Consequently, owning such a piece means bringing into your home an authentic ritual of aristocratic conviviality from days gone by. Undoubtedly, the craftsmanship of this fine 19th-century Italian ceramic (H 31 cm, D 32 cm) stands out for the incredible delicacy of its floral motifs.
