Description

This Baroque portrait of a noble gentleman was painted in oil on canvas in the early 18th century by an unidentified, gifted European master. The nobleman is depicted in a relaxed pose and dressed for home: a luxuriant powdered wig, a loosely unbuttoned silk waistcoat from under which a cravat is visible, and an exquisite dark blue robe with a contrasting lining falling onto the shoulders. The skillfully conveyed character of the subject - an attentive, slightly ironic gaze and a barely perceptible half-smile - reveals to the viewer a strong personality of an uncommon mind, possessing rich life experience. Masterfully using the play of light and shadow, the artist builds the volume of the composition, skillfully highlighting the face against the background of a restrained colour palette.
