Description

Sumptuous wrought-iron and embossed-plate floor lamp, topped at the top by a charming lantern. It is lit by a single light, using a bayonet lampholder. Our large luminaire rests on a wrought-iron tripod base, ending in scrolled work. The central shaft is embellished with a braid made from double, twisted wire. This is topped by a pretty crowned lantern, embellished with embossed sheet metal palm leaves. Beautiful ornamentation of strings of pearls in different colors, water drops and large plates complete the decor. Our luminaire has been lacquered in old gold, retaining its original color. The electrification is recent. Very fine craftsmanship from the 1950's. Note a small amount of wear on the inside edge of a large plaque, which has no effect on the visual of our
