Description

Hand-blown chalice-shaped bowl signed and dated 1990. The neck is flared and edged with green, the body is powder pink and the amber inclusion running down the stem is very successful. The decoration, an amber/brown cast that seems frozen in the thickness with a magnifying glass effect typical of his work, iridescent, metallic reflections that change according to the light: emerald green, bronze, gold, pink; very beautiful marbled/mottled effects with pink, white powdered backgrounds. He used crushed glass and added oxides to create these golden, colored spots. Jean-Claude Novaro was a French Master glassmaker (1943-2014), born in Antibes, died in Monaco and nicknamed "The King of Glass" for his mastery of color and form considered one of the greatest glassmakers of the
