Description

Medallion portrait of Maximilien Robespierre in bas-relief dated 1850 19thAn important figure in French political history in the second half of the 18th century, Maximilien Robespierre (1758-1794) was a lawyer and politician and a figure in the French Revolution of 1789. This bas-relief portrait frozen in bronze pays tribute to the figure of this controversial man, both adored for his prowess & reforms for the people, and criticized for his repressions and severity that led to the Terror, a fateful era where many lost their heads to the guillotine. Considered either as an instigator of La Terreur or as a Humanist who sought to minimize it and participated in the abolition of slavery, the figure of this controversial man is today ready to decorate your walls & your collections of 19th century bronze
