Description

GIOVANNI MICHELE GRANERI Oil on canvas, 63x79 cm; period frame. This delightful painting depicts a joyful carnival scene featuring an adult and a child dressed as Pulcinella. The woman on the left, smiling and engaged in conversation with a fan in her hand, and the man on the right playing the violin could be the painter himself and his wife. Documents from 1747/1748 (see A. Cifani, F., Monetti, I Piaceri e le Grazie, Turin 1993, vol. 2, chap. 5, doc.) list Giovanni Michele Graneri among the members of the Royal Orchestra. A painting from around 1747, signed Graneri, depicts a couple: the man, very similar to the one in the painting under consideration here, could be the author of the self-portrait; The woman, whom we find depicted identically in many other paintings, could be his
