Description

Hermès -- Cape Cod Grand Modèle Automatic Watch, Steel and Swift Calfskin. Stainless steel bracelet watch, Cape Cod Grand Modèle, reference CC1.710. Rounded rectangular case, characteristic of the Cape Cod line designed by Henri d'Origny in 1991 as a tribute to the house's iconic silk scarf of the same name. Silver opaline dial, printed Arabic numerals, applied hour track, date window at 3 o'clock. Anti-reflective sapphire crystal. Automatic movement with manual winding. Screwed caseback, serial number engraved on the reverse. Signed Hermès dial. Swiss made. Strap in etoupe Swift calfskin -- finely grained leather, warm grey tone -- signed Hermès pin buckle. Swiss manufacture for Hermès Paris, a model in continuous production since the 1990s. Accompanied by its original case

Cape Cod is in very good working order. The dial and steel case are in near-new condition. A few micro-scratches on the caseback, inevitable on any worn watch, with no bearing on the movement or the dial-side appearance. The strap is new.Please note: as the watch has been opened for inspection, the original water-resistance guarantee cannot be certified beyond splash and rain protection -- standard daily use, without immersion.The Cape Cod Grand Modèle wears with surprising ease: the rectangular case elongates rather than burdens the wrist, and the etoupe Swift strap sits equally well against a shirt cuff or a fine-knit sleeve.
