Description

An important pair of sandstone lions created in the late 19th century, characterized by refined sculptural craftsmanship and a strong decorative presence. The sculptures depict two crouching lions with a proud expression, complete with heraldic shields on their chests--elements that lend the ensemble a historical and architectural charm of great appeal. Ideal for entrances, gardens, columns, or distinctive interior and exterior spaces. In excellent overall condition considering their age, with a natural patina and signs of aging that attest to their authenticity and antique charm.
