A few micro-scratches on the case and dial, unavoidable on a worn piece: they speak to a watch that has been used, not neglected. A few faint internal marks visible inside the dial, with no impact on legibility. The interchangeable straps, including the pearl bracelet, are in unworn condition.The strap attachment system, which slides and locks directly against the case, functions perfectly.What makes this example noteworthy: it is a complete full set -- original case, outer box, dated certificate -- accompanied by seven signed straps, six of which are unworn exotic leathers. This level of completeness has become uncommon on the secondary market for this model. The 35.5 mm version with gold dial and diamonds represents the most assertive configuration of the Reflet line. Retail prices range from EUR12,000 to EUR16,000 depending on case size and the presence of diamonds.
