Description

Mid-Century French mirror with black profile, 1970s. This highly decorative piece features a striking division created by 1.5 cm wide black raised profile strips. In addition, the angled glass panels are composed of different mirrors. The outer and inner surfaces of the mirrored glass (3 to 4.5 cm) feature a speckled pattern composed of small irregular dark dots. Between them is a gray mirrored glass divider (3.0 cm). The overall width of the frame is 18 cm, and the inner glass measures 44 x 58 cm. What makes this mirror interesting is the alternating surfaces and frames. The wooden frame has a slight patina and an authentic look. The term "parclose", of French origin, refers to the material used to separate the various sections from one another. A highly expressive and unique piece.
