Description

An important Napoleon III period Louis XVI-style console table in richly carved wood with gilded leaves. The front is beautifully decorated with drooping garlands, rosettes, pearls and rows of finely chased piastres. It stands on four tapered, fluted legs joined by an elegantly curved brace centered on a carved covered vase. Very fine carving and remarkable decorative work, typical of the great Parisian productions of the 19th century. It is topped with its original marble in veined antique yellow tones, in perfect harmony with the richness of the antique gilding, which has been preserved in fine condition. A spectacular and highly decorative piece of furniture, perfectly suited to a classic interior, a private mansion, a prestigious residence or a contemporary setting looking for a strong piece.
