Description

Chandelier. Bronze, glass, metal. 19th century. Gilded bronze frame chandelier or candelabra with architectural and classical influences, composed of a series of openwork arms formed by two metal lines, creating pronounced curves reminiscent of 18th-century French rococo works. These arms terminate in traditional cups and supports designed to hold the candle and collect the dripping wax. As is often the case, it has been adapted for electrical use, with the wiring routed externally, as the arms lack the necessary space inside. - Dimensions: 65 x 65 x 87 cm
