Description

Large fruitwood farmhouse table, antique work from the XVIIIe century, featuring a sober, authentic silhouette of great rustic elegance. This beautiful piece seduces with its generous dimensions, the richness of its antique patina and the natural warmth of its delicately weathered wood. The vast top composed of long antique planks reveals a deep, lively veining, testifying to many years of use and history. Resting on a simple, solid base joined by a brace, this table evokes grand country homes, family kitchens and old character houses where furniture crossed generations. The table's uncluttered, almost monastic aesthetic gives it a strong presence while retaining a gentle decorative touch. It will naturally find its place as much in an antique interior as in a contemporary decor seeking
