Description

Under glass, the canvas is presented in its elegant period gilded frame. 70 x 59 cm (to frame).

Charming portrait of Baroness Alfred Durrieu (1831-1895) née Blanche Dufour, dated 1858, created in oil on canvas by Baroness de Lage.

This work of the French school of the XIXe century testifies to the refinement and elegance of aristocratic portraits of the second half of the XIXe century. The Baroness's face is finely rendered, emphasizing the distinction of her model. A light restoration will need to be considered on the neck and forehead, in order to preserve the full integrity of the painting. A refined and decorative portrait, ideal for lovers of French art of the XIXe century and collections of portraits of the nobility.
