Description

Elegant, small-sized secretary desk characteristic of 1960s French design. Made of blond wood veneer, probably cherry or fruit, it features a particularly graphic front composed of six drawers of varying sizes highlighted by a contrasting black frame. Circular handles with neoclassical decoration add a refined note to the ensemble. The flap reveals a functional interior sheathed in original burgundy red lining, fitted with four drawers and storage compartments intended for mail, documents or writing utensils. The black lacquered wood base with crossed lines gives the piece a light, architectural silhouette typical of the modernist creations of the Trente Glorieuses. With its restrained proportions and sober design, this desk will naturally find its place in an apartment, bedroom, library or
