Description

Walnut folding table - Late 19th century
Elegant folding table dating from the late 19th century, crafted from solid walnut with beautiful natural grain. The folding "sail-style" top allows it to take up less space when not in use, making it ideal as a side table or a refined piece of furniture in both classic and modern settings. The table is supported by sabre legs, typical of the period, which are elegant, solid, and well-proportioned. The original patina and wax finish lend the piece an authentic charm and a striking aesthetic presence. Condition: very good for its age; stable and ready for use. It shows slight signs of wear, consistent with its history. Perfect for entryways, living rooms, or studies. A true antique piece rich in character and period charm.
