Description

Set of 4 armchair chairs by Philippe Starck , first edition for Driade Aleph. Embossed under the seat with the designer's signature. Structure in polished die-cast aluminum, shell in curved plywood with blond mahogany finish. Foam seat covered in genuine beige leather. The publication of the Costes armchair by Driade in 1984 marked the beginning of a perennial collaboration between the designer and the Italian publisher. In the early 90's, the designer designed a new version of his mythical armchair: King Costes, slightly wider and with four legs. A very fine finish as well as very good comfort and stability. These four seats are vintage and in good condition but may show a few traces of wear due to their age. No defects.
