Description

This coffee table or side table is a true masterpiece of mid-20th-century French design. It embodies the timeless elegance and minimalism characteristic of the 1950s. This model is attributed to Pierre Guariche, a renowned designer, for the Airborne brand. The clean, functional design makes it a unique piece, both practical and aesthetic. The table features a sturdy black steel frame, giving it remarkable stability and durability. The thick glass top adds a touch of lightness and modernity, while providing a practical surface on which to place everyday objects. This top is securely fastened by chrome cabochons, a detail that enhances its refined look. Underneath, the table features two brass magazine racks, located on either side of a black opaline shelf. These elements add a functional dimension, while contributing to the overall aesthetics of the piece. The brass finishes, combined with the black steel, create an elegant and timeless contrast. The overall condition of the table can be described as well-preserved, considering its age and past use. Some signs of natural wear are visible, testifying to its authenticity and history. These traces of time in no way alter its charm, quite the contrary: they give it a unique patina, much sought-after by lovers of vintage pieces. With dimensions of 90 x 45 x 43 cm, this table fits perfectly into a variety of spaces, be it a living room, an office or even an entryway. Its versatile design allows it to be used as both a coffee table and an occasional table, depending on requirements. This piece is ideal for those looking for a piece of furniture that combines functionality, aesthetics and history. It will bring a touch of sophistication to any interior, while remaining discreet and timeless. You can follow me on my Instagram by following this link:
